

ECOUTE #8

Anti-marriage for all demonstrations.

In recent weeks, there have been lots of anti-marriage for everyone demonstrations, which have seen thousands of people on the streets of many different cities around France, people that don't want the law to change, that don't want homosexuals to have the right to adopt children. And in my opinion, these demonstrations are frightening. For me, this was very frightening that have taken the time to protest marriage and to protest love, something that they disagree with so strongly that they take to the streets in order to protest and demonstrate this. I wish that people who were demonstrating against the marriage for everyone law would use that effort and use that energy to focus on something, in my opinion, that is more threatening. I don't think that the marriage for everyone is in any way dangerous, that it will change the life of a heterosexual couple for example. It will not change their daily life but the law for the marriage that allows same-sex couples to marry will change the daily life of homosexuals because if we are respected, if we are seen as equal within the law, the law then helps us to be accepted and seen as equal by the population.

*to disagree with something / somebody : être en désaccord avec quelqu'un / quelque chose *to take to the streets : descendre dans la rue *threatening : menaçant

-> a threat : une menace

-> to threaten : menacer *to allow somebody to do something : autoriser quelqu'un à faire quelque chose *equal: égal

http://pedagogie2.ac-reunion.fr/cyberproflv/index_fichiers/podcaz_Bac_anglais.htm